It is deemed that there are only three routes that can be used for access: Sidmouth Road, Honeysuckle Drive (via Old Elm Road) or Hayne Lane.

Old Elm Road leads on to tens of other side roads that have possibly thousands of householders. They have no other access routes. Honeysuckle Drive is one of these that leads on to other side roads with many households. They also have no other way of access or egress. If this route is decided on, it will create a large amount of chaos for thousands of residents.

I am one of these residents at [REDACTED] Campion Way.

I strongly oppose deciding on a route through Old Elm Road as it will greatly disrupt all our lives for years to come, when a lot of the people living here are retired and moved here for a peaceful life.

Many lorries will be trundling along from the early hours creating havoc, disrupting peoples peace, damaging the roads (which are already badly damaged with pot holes), spilling mud, gravel etc.

There are many other issues of concern for example GP.s, Schools, sewerage and drainage systems being linked to existing systems the are already overloaded causing regular spillages.

I went to the Public Consultation on the new draft local plan at The Beehive in Honiton.

I was very disappointed that there was only one person there to answer our questions. She was overwhelmed with questions from the large number of people. Because of this, I did not get the chance to speak to her at all.

Many people expressed to me that they expected to have a sit down consultation where the residents can ask questions of the people that are actually dealing with the planning so that they can give their arguments for each route planned positives and negatives. Unfortunately, I left there no more informed than when I arrived.

I am mystified as to the reason for a Consultation Meeting if we cannot discuss our issues with a person who will listen to our concerns and take that into account.

As you can imagine, I am very disappointed as I feel I wasted my time going to it.

I look forward to a more positive reply
